HOW TO VOTE AND WHERE TO DO IT

VOTING PLACE FOR PRIMARY ELECTION ANNOUNCED BY COUNTY CLERK

VOTE IF NOT REGISTERED

Only Two Freeholders Required to Qualify Unregistered Voters at Polling Place

County Clerk Iva Harrington late yesterday completed the list of polling places in Clackamas county for the primary election on May 19. There are eighty-one precincts in the county where ballot boxes and voting booths will be set up next week, and eleven of these precincts are in Oregon City.

Miss Harrington calls attention to the laws governing elections, and recent supreme court decisions deciding that primary elections are governed by general election laws. These factors make it possible for a qualified citizen who failed to register for the primary election, to cast his ballot notwithstanding, if he has attached to a form provided the signatures of two freeholders as witnesses. Hereafter it has been necessary to have six freeholders as witnesses and in view of those requirements many who had failed to register failed to vote. Under present circumstances, however, the fact that a citizen has not registered should not prevent him from voting.

A card is provided at the polls for the signature of two freeholders and for the subscription by the judge of the election and when properly filled out and signed this card constitutes a permanent registration. It is returned to the county clerk's office and filed and makes further registration for future elections unnecessary unless the voter changes his residence. This arrangement should prove a very convenient one for citizens who are not registered at the time of the election and should bring out a much larger vote than would otherwise be polled. There are always two persons handy in any precinct who could qualify as signers of the registration blank. Citizens desiring to qualify as voters in the primary election at the polls should call for registration blank "A."

The following polling places have been established by the county clerk and booths will be erected in each of these locations before Friday, May 19:

Abernathy, Holachu's hall; Ardenwald, school house; Barlow, Wrostad & Erickson's hall; Barton, Gibson's hall; Beaver Creek No. 1, Beaver Creek hall; Beaver Creek No. 2, Beacon Heights hall; Boring, Telford's hall; Bull Run, school house; Canby No. 1, city hall; Canby No. 2, Bair's warehouse; Canby No. 3, Lucke's warehouse; Canemah, school house; Clarkes, Grange hall; Cottrell, Proctor's cabin; Concord, school gymnasium; Colton, Colton hall; Carus school house; Cherrymills, Thomas Brown building; Clackamas, Old Fellow's hall; Damascus, school house; Dickey Prairie, school house; Dover, school house; Eagle Creek, Wilburn's hall; Estacada No. 1, Corner 2nd & Hobart St.; Estacada No. 2, city hall; Garfield, Grange hall; George, community hall; Gladstone No. 1, city hall; Gladstone No. 2, Goodwin's hall; Harmony No. 1, school house; Harmony No. 2, school house; Highland school house; Jennings Lodge, Jennings Lodge store; Killin, church hall; Liberal, Vick's hall; Logan, Grange hall; Mackburg, Scramlin's hall; Maple Lane, Grange hall; Marquam Ladies' Aid hall; Milwaukie No. 1, fire house; Milwaukie No. 2, fire house; Milwaukie Heights, Sweeney's residence; Molalla No. 1, Grange hall; Molalla No. 2, Mackall building; Mount Pleasant, community hall; Mulino, Mulino hall; New Era, Grange hall; Needy, Thompson's hall; Oak Grove No. 1, Carpenter shop; Oak Grove No. 2, school gymnasium; Oregon City No. 1, South 1st & Center St.; Oregon City No. 2, Cataract No. 2, Engine house; Oregon City No. 3, Schram building; Oregon City No. 4, Fountain No. 1, engine house; Oregon City No. 5, Barclay school gymnasium; Oregon City No. 6, Green Point No. 5, engine house; Oregon City No. 7, A. STUDER IS IN JAIL AS CHICKEN THIEF

SHERIFF AND CONSTABLE USE INDIAN TACTICS IN TRAILING THIEF

Philip Studer, whose home is in "Stringtown," south of Canemah is in the county jail today recalling the stirring history of the days of the Indian and his warpath escapades against the white man, and also looking forward to an indictment by the grand jury on several charges, including that of chicken stealing.

From many sections of the country, and especially from those west side farms in the Canemah neighborhood, complaints have been registered repeatedly against chicken thieves and Sheriff Wilson and Constable Frost have been on the trails of the culprits for more than a month. Not until Thursday did they get conclusive evidence against Studer, one of those most suspected. On the previous night someone at Beaver Creek saw Studer making away with a number of choice fowls and the description obtained by the sheriff and constable enabled them to settle blame upon him.

The officers took up the trail in true Indian fashion at Beaver Creek on Thursday morning and by the peculiar print made by one of the shoes on the horse which Studer was riding, followed the thief to his home at Stringtown. The officers broke down the door of the Studer home and in the kitchen found the prisoner and his wife dressing chickens.

Studer at first proclaimed his innocence, but as conclusive proof of charges was brought up he confessed his sins and was hauled away to jail. The authorities have filed several different counts against Studer, any one of which is probably sufficient for his conviction, and the prisoner has confessed to each charge.

Sheriff Wilson and Constable Frost think that they have apprehended the principal chicken-coop-raider and the man who has been depleting the stocks of a great many farm yards within the past few months. Studer sold several hundred chickens in Portland markets and his wife sold many here in Oregon City.

REHEARSE HISTORY OF CHAMPOEG DAYS

MANY PIONEERS AND DESCENDANTS MEET AT HISTORIC SITE ON SATURDAY

Old J. Pluvius, that abhorred attendant upon spring outings in Oregon, and a long wait for the boat at Wilsonville, did not deter a large number of Clackamas county people from attending the Champoege celebration on last Saturday. But there was the same spirit in the hearts of the present generations that characterized their ancestors, who assembled at old Champoege seventy-three years ago to organize a provisional government under the protection of the stars and stripes.

There isn't one of those hardy souls who braved the elements of the early days to meet at Champoege who would not have been made glad beyond expression by the patriotic display on last Saturday; who would not have recognized the fine tribute to the works and the men of the days of the pioneers, paid by those of the present day who commemorated the founding of the provisional government in gala array on Saturday.

About 300 pioneers and their descendants assembled at Champoege, and a good representation from this county was present. A band greeted the Pomona when she arrived and throughout the celebration the band played a prominent part. With speeches and general merrymaking the day was made one to be long remembered and was a most fitting commemoration of the occasion.

Rain prevented outdoor speech-making, and the exercises were held in a large warehouse, which stands as a memento of the days when Champoege was quite an important river shipping point.

Judge Peter H. D'Arcy presided, although Ex-Governor T. T. Geer, who used to be known as "the tall sycamore" of the Waldo hills" in the day when he was breaking lances in the lists of politics, started to speak first.

In the speeches the old story of the pioneer trials and privations were retold for the benefit of those who have only dreamed that such things really existed in this fertile land. The silver-tongued orators of the present day, attempting to outdo their worthy predecessors with their oratory, pictured the verdant beauty of the new country that was opened by the brave men and women who braved these early day hardships, and the familiar story of Champoege was retold. The vote that resulted in the formation of a provisional government under the protection of the United States, rather than of England, by the small margin of two ballots, was retold.

Among the speakers were, Edward H. Belknap of Marion county, who

AUSTRALIAN AND POLITICIAN TALK

LIVE WIRE MEETING FEATURED BY SPLENDID ADDRESS OF PROMINENT VISITOR

CLUB IS TO AID RESORT

Charles B. Moores, Former Resident, Recalls Pleasant Associations in His Talk

There were a number of things that J. W. Connelly, publisher of the Morning Herald of Sydney, Australia, and otherwise very prominent citizen of that important south-Pacific island, did not talk about in his address to the members of the Live Wires at their regular meeting on Tuesday; and then again, there were a number of things that Mr. Connelly did talk about. And throughout the length and breadth of his heart-to-heart oration he used that quaint, good diction of the highly educated, and shot his words out in a healthy tone and with decidedly English accents.

Mr. Connelly, together with Harry Southhouse, head of the largest firm of paper dealers in Australia, and H. L. Willard, prominent importer and exporter of paper, were in Oregon City in connection with business with the Hawley Pulp & Paper company, and by fortunate circumstance the Live Wire program committee enlisted the oratorical support of Mr. Connelly for the weekly meeting at the Commercial club.

Among those things which Mr. Connelly did choose to bring up in his thoroughly enjoyable and really humorous talk before the Live Wires was the timely subject of national preparedness. He discussed the methods in vogue in his own country and recommended them to the serious consideration of his audience.

"At the age of fifteen years the boys of Australia begin their military training," said the speaker, "and they continue in the service of their country through several stages, not being released until they have served as trainees for a number of years, as members of the citizen forces for another period, and finally as members of the reserves for fifteen years. In the light of this system it is not remarkable that a country of four or five millions of people armed and sent into the field in the present war 300,000 trained soldiers." The inference was that a most remarkable army could be trained in the United States under the Australian system of putting every man in the uniform of his country.

Two types of American citizenship invade the Australian country, Mr. Connelly said, and from these types the people of that country do not get the proper conception of the better American. Those who are most common in Australia are the prize fighter and his retinue, and that traveling torture, "the man who tries to tell us how to run our business." Because the latter have created such an unfavorable impression in Australia Mr. Connelly refrained from words of advice on any subject, although his audience felt that advice coming in such a well-organized vocabulary as that possessed by the visitor would be most beneficial.

Withal, Mr. Connelly's talk was perhaps the best delivered and most heartily received of any that has been heard in Oregon City for years. The speaker popularized himself instantly by his keen and well-chosen humor. He had no criticism and found no fault—a reputation that will rush to greet the visitor should he return, as he expressed hope of, to Oregon City at some future time. In winding up to deliver his fast and snappy talk Mr. Connelly announced that he had purchased a phrase book on his way over from Australia, and that it had helped him in gaining a knowledge of a language distinctly American, and apologized for what might sound like a peculiarity in his diction by saying that our speech sounded equally peculiar to him. The peculiarity of the gentleman's speech was only in its rare quality.

Charles B. Moores, well-known workers Mrs. Fitzsimmons was converted, and pledged to devote her life to aiding those who were on the wayward path.

On Tuesday night she spoke at the First Baptist church in this city. She told of her early childhood in France where she was born. She spoke in a soft, pleasant voice, which carried the French accent.

For forty-five minutes she talked, swaying her audience in her detail of her past life. She told of the girls whom she had met and had tried to help since beginning her new life. The work, she explained, that she was now engaged in, was not confined to wayward girls, but boys who were considered incorrigible were included.

Her auditors were impressed by the sincere earnestness of her talk, and the easy manner in which she was able to present her arguments. At the conclusion of her talk she sang a hymn, "I Will Go With Him All the Way."

CANDIDATES PLEDGE AID TO FISHERMEN

BILL TO PROTECT SALMON WILL NOT BE AMENDED BY STATE LEGISLATORS

A statewide movement to obtain the endorsement of the initiative bill to protect salmon in the Columbia and its tributaries was started in Oregon City this week, when members of the Clackamas County Fishermen's union secured the pledge of county candidates for the legislature to aid in making the measure effective. Following the local action, all candidates for the legislature will be asked to declare their stand in regard to the measure. The Clackamas county candidates voiced their pledge of aid in the following resolutions:

"Whereas, a petition is now being circulated to place upon the ballot at the general election in November an initiative bill to protect salmon in the Columbia river and its tributaries:

"And, whereas, it is reported that certain fish packers assert that they will spend $100,000 to repeal or amend the said bill in the legislature if the said bill should be enacted by the people;

"And, whereas we believe the future of the fishing industry on the Columbia river and its tributaries depends upon the protection of the salmon and the elimination of seines, traps and fishwheels;

"Now, therefore, we, the undersigned candidates for nomination for representatives in the legislature from Clackamas county, hereby pledge ourselves to the people of Clackamas county and the state of Oregon that, should the said bill be enacted by the people, we will use our best endeavors and all honorable means to see that the said bill is not amended or repealed either by implication or otherwise." The resolutions are signed by George C. Brownell, C. Schuebel, H. D. Dedman and E. D. Olds.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS OF DISTRICT CONVE

FINE PROGRAM PREPARED FOR BIG MEETING AT WILLAMETTE TOMORROW

The Sunday schools of the Oregon City district will assemble at Willamette for their annual convention tomorrow morning and the interesting program that has been prepared will last throughout the day. The Rev. C. A. Phipps, president of the State Sunday School association, will attend and direct the convention and a large number of other prominent Sunday school workers will appear on the program that has been prepared. Delegates have been appointed from a majority of the schools in the Oregon City district.

Basket luncheons will be in order and will constitute both the noon and evening meals. The convention will open at 10:30 Friday morning with a prayer service led by Mrs. W. T. Milliken and will close at 8:30 in the evening with an address on Sunday School efficiency by the Rev. Mr. Phipps. Trains leave West Linn for Willamette at 10:15, 1:25, 6:45 and 7:30.

The following program has been arranged for the convention:

8:20—Sunday School Efficiency, Rev. C. A. Phipps.

Grand Jury to Meet
A number of indictments are expected to be returned by the grand jury which meets at the court house on Monday, and charges will be heard in several important criminal cases.

WILL PAY TRIBUTE TO FALLEN HEROES

MEADE POST AND RELIEF CORPS COMBINE TO RENDER BIG MEMORIAL PROGRAM

SCHOOL CHILDREN TO AID

Naval Ceremonial to be Conducted By Relief Corps from Suspension Bridge

Memorial day will be fittingly observed in Oregon City on May 30, with Meade post, No. 2, G. A. R., the Meade Relief Corps and the children of the city schools taking most active part in the commemorative exercises. The day's program will be started at 9 o'clock in the morning with the assembly of the pupils of the Barclay school. From the Barclay school the pupils will march, escorted by Meade post, to Main street, where the pupils of the McLoughlin institute will join them and march together to Willamette hall. There brief addresses will be made by F. J. Toose, city school superintendent, and Father Hildebrand.

At the conclusion of the exercises at Willamette hall the children, Meade post and the relief corps, escorted by Company G, O. N. G., will march to Mountain View cemetery, where a patriotic program will be rendered. The drum corps will play at the cemetery and the Rev. F. A. Stockwell will offer prayer. Officers of the day will crown the old soldier's monument and a tribute to the unknown dead will be delivered by the Rev. T. J. Williams.

After the repetition of Lincoln's Gettysburg address by F. J. Toose, ritualistic ceremonies by Meade Relief Corps and the sounding of taps, the graves of the departed soldiers will be decorated.

Following the services at the cemetery the relief corps will assemble at Willamette hall and from there will go to the suspension bridge where the naval memorial service will be conducted. Beach's Boy's band will play at this ceremony.

At the noon hour the members of the relief corps will provide a luncheon for the members of Meade Post, G. A. R., and their wives, and at two o'clock in the afternoon the post and relief corps will assemble on Main street and will march to the high school, accompanied by several patriotic organizations, in addition to the Veterans Drum Corps, the boy's band, Company G, O. N. G., and the Woman's Relief Corps. At the high school the following program will be rendered:

Music, Oregon State Veteran Drum Corps; Invocation, Rev. J. K. Hawkins; Patriotic exercises of the Oregon City schools as follows: Orchestra, high school; song, "Flags of Nations," Eastham school; recitation, "A Brotherhood of Heroes," Velma Randall; patriotic song, selected, Misses Naomi and Eschol Armstrong; recitation, "The Bivouac," Eunice King; recitation, "Driving Home the Cows," Samuel McLarty; patriotic song, "Cheer Old Glory," Eastham school; recitation, "Memorial Day," Frances Bowland; vocal music, Barclay school; "The Star Spangled Banner," pantomime, Carrie Cunningham, Alice Zinser, Mona Toban; patriotic song, High School Girl's quartet; orchestra, High School; introduction, Commander A. F. Stokes; "Star Spangled Banner," Mrs. Imogen Harding Brodie; recitation, "The Bivouac," remarks, Mayor Hackett, president of the day; address Comrade M. L. Pratt; taps, Mrs. Imogen Harding Brodie.

To perpetuate the memories of the heroes of the wars of this nation, Meade post and the relief corps have arranged to visit the public schools and McLoughlin institute on the following dates:

Tuesday, May 16—Oregon City high school at 10 a. m., Barclay school at 2 p. m.
Wednesday, May 17—Eastham school at 10 a. m., Mount Pleasant school at 2 p. m.
Friday, May 19—Bolton school at 10 a. m., Willamette school at 2 p. m.
Tuesday, May 23—Gladstone school at 10 a. m., Parkplace at 2 p. m.
Wednesday, May 24—Oak Grove at 10 a. m., McLoughlin institute at 2 p. m.
Thursday, May 25—Canemah school at 10 a. m., West Side high at 2 p. m.

Oswego Elects Teachers

The Oswego school board paid a fine tribute to the ability of the teachers who have served the school during the past year when it re-elected, last Friday evening, all who applied for re-election. B. A. Vose will continue as principal of the school, Miss Mary Bickner will continue in charge of the fifth and sixth grades and Miss Irma Vose will remain with the first and second grades. A successor to Miss Huphrey, the only teacher who did not apply for re-election, will be selected at an early meeting of the school board.

Headache is Nature's warning that the human machine is running badly.

C. E. CONVENTION IS HELD AT PARKPLACE

COUNTY CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR UNION ORGANIZATION IS PERFECTED AT MEET

After a very successful meeting the Clackamas County Christian Endeavor union closed its first annual session at Parkplace on Sunday evening following the installation of the first set of officers elected to direct the affairs of the newly formed union.

The convention opened at Parkplace on Saturday with many societies throughout the county represented on the registration book. Many officers of the State Christian Endeavor union were present at the convention and appeared on the interesting program that featured the two-day meeting. Clarence Sprague of Portland delivered one of the first addresses of the meeting and told of the aims and ambitions of the Christian Endeavor movement in a very interesting manner.

Mr. Sprague, Miss Estella Ford, of Portland, Alva Patton of Hillsboro and G. Evert Baker of Portland were prominent at the session in the organization of the county union.

A "Millionaire Banquet" was a feature of the convention on Saturday evening. The ladies of the Federated church of Parkplace were largely responsible for this event and it was a splendid success. A number of prominent workers responded fittingly to toasts and ex-president Earl E. Feike of the State union, addressed the meeting on the subject of "The Campaign for Millions." A social hour followed the banquet. A budget covering the possible expenditures of the new county union was adopted at the evening meeting.

On Sunday, the last day of the convention, Dr. G. B. Pratt of Portland, addressed the meeting on the subject of "Consecration." Musical numbers by the Gladstone quartet and Miss Kathleen Harrison, soloist, were features of the Sunday afternoon meeting.

On Sunday evening the convention closed with an enthusiastic rally and a number of very interesting speeches. The following officers were elected to have charge of the affairs of the county union during the first year of its life:

Lorraine Ostrom, Jennings Lodge, president; Elbert Charman, Oregon City, vice-president; Miss Shirley Swallow, Wichita, secretary; Miss Solomon, Gladstone, treasurer; department superintendents: William Miller, Oregon City, efficiency; Miss Ethel Mather, Clackamas, missions; Lester Brunner, Parkplace, quiet hour; Miss Clara Tate, Oregon City, evangelism.

NET FISHERMEN MAY LOSE RIVER RIGHT

ANGLER'S CLUB HOT ON TRAIL OF THOSE WHO INTERFERE WITH REAL SPORT

At last the Angler's club of Oregon has received recognition of the value of its fight against net fishermen who invade Clackamas county each year and take from the Willamette river the fish that would provide sport for twenty times their number of rod and line fishermen.

A movement launched by the Angler's club to bring about legislation against the net fishermen is gaining rapid headway, especially in Oregon City and in Portland, and it is certain that the next session of legislature will consider bills which have this as their purpose. At the last session the Gill bill accomplished a great deal for the rod and line men in establishing the suspension bridge at this city as the dead line for nets. But the Gill bill did not go far enough, in the opinion of those who fish for sport rather than for profit; it should have eliminated the nets from the river altogether.

Within the past few years Oregon City has become a mecca for sportsmen from all parts of the country. A few European anglers have answered the call of the river and this summer a Scotch nobleman was among the most enthusiastic sportsmen on the river, and made his headquarters in Oregon City. The fame of the salmon fishing found here has spread rapidly and far and is one of the most genuinely valuable assets of which this county can boast.

The question brought to attention by the Angler's club is as to whether the net fishermen, coming principally from the one-horse canneries of the Columbia river, are more valuable to Oregon City and Clackamas county than are the men who come here in great numbers for the sake of the sport of rod and line fishing. The club answers its own question with a booming "no!" The net fishermen in this county are comparatively few in number, and it is a well known fact that most of them come here from other parts of the state and even from other states to take a livelihood from the river that could be turned into an attraction for tourists such as is not rivalled in the northwest.

SUPPORT PLEDGED FORMER SHERIFF

PROMINENT DEMOCRATIC VOTERS DISAPPROVE OF VIETOR AS SHERIFF CANDIDATE

KOEHLER IS NOT A CANDIDATE

Oswego Man Absolutely Refuses the Nomination. Asks Friends to Support E. T. Mass

That imaginary thorn that The Enterprise has so enterprisingly discovered in the thigh of the democratic party has been yanked out by no less a person than Henry W. Koehler of Oswego. Mr. Koehler submits the following statement to his friends and democratic voters in general as a result of reports which were circulated saying that his name would be written in on the primary ballot as a candidate for sheriff:

"I find it absolutely impossible to consider being a candidate for nomination as sheriff. I respectfully request that my friend do not write my name on the primary ballots because, under no condition will I accept the nomination if I should receive it. My reasons for this are purely personal, yet none the less final and I repeat that under no condition will I accept the nomination. I request that the friends who would vote for me if I could possibly be a candidate for nomination give their votes to E. T. Mass and I am certain that they will be well satisfied if Mr. Mass is the choice at the primaries." Signed: Henry W. Koehler.

Mr. Koehler explains his statement by saying that private matters make his acceptance of the support of his many friends an utter impossibility and lays special stress upon the fact that he will not accept, in any event, the nomination if he should be honored with it. In designating E. T. Mass as the man he will support for the office and as the man whom he would appreciate having his friends support, Mr. Koehler does so with a firm belief that Mr. Mass' nomination would be to the best interests of the party and that his election would be to the best interests of Clackamas county.

Within the past week practically every prominent democrat in this community, and a large number from other parts of the county, have expressed their interest in the candidacy of E. T. Mass, and pledged their support. Denunciation of Maxwell Vietor is not a matter of personalities, but rather because of a belief that that candidate would not serve the interests of the county as would Mr. Mass. In some instances, however, the sentiment against Vietor is very strongly expressed, not only because of the tactics he has employed in his work, but because of the feeling that he is the last man in the county to be entitled to the office. Mr. Vietor is not a taxpayer and is not generally known to the voters of the county. On the other hand E. T. Mass has served two terms and his record in office stands as a tribute to the man and to his principals.

G. L. Hedges and J. E. Hedges have both expressed their disfavor in connection with Maxwell Vietor's candidacy. These prominent partisans are strong in their expression against the man simply because they feel he is not qualified. Both of these gentlemen will support E. T. Mass at the primary election.

J. E. Jack, another prominent democrat, said: "Certainly I will not vote for Vietor. Mass is the man who deserves and should receive democratic support and I shall certainly write his name in on the ballot."

T. J. Meyers, well known as a businessman and as a democrat, is opposed to Vietor's candidacy and an ardent supporter of E. T. Mass. "I am firmly of the opinion," said Mr. Meyers, "that the democratic voters of the county appreciate the situation and will come to the support of the only candidate who has a chance of election and will write Mr. Mass' name in on the ballot in sufficient numbers to assure his nomination."

These are only a few of the expressions that have been heard, but in every case the voters say they are opposed to Vietor's candidacy and are to support Mass next week. The opposition to Vietor, as has been stated, is because of the fact that he is not considered the proper timber for the office if he should be nominated and elected. The democrats desire to put into the field someone with a possibility of election this fall, and in Vietor they see the absolute defeat of the party as far as this office is concerned.

Democratic supporters of Mr. Mass call special attention to the fact that when his name is written in on the ballot that a cross be placed in front of the name. The mere writing of the name does not signify a vote unless the cross mark is put in its proper place before the name. Votes will be invalid without the cross. There is one blank line on the ballot for the insertion of the name of a candidate for sheriff and on that line the name of Mass should be inserted.
