OLD KIDS ARE HAPPIEST

How often do we hear mature people talk about the silly, foolish things which young people do. They forget that they once went into ecstasies over these very things which now seem ridiculous and bothersome to them.

As we grow older we gradually lose our zest and our enthusiasm for the things which once delighted and excited us. When we approach manhood and womanhood we cannot understand how children can be so carried away with their childish plays with their simple toys; how it is that they never seem to tire of things that do not interest us; and then when we get a little older even the things which so fascinated us in our youth gradually lose their charm for us, and so it is through life.

As we advance in years we become interested in new things. Those behind us gradually lose their attractiveness.

While we cannot, perhaps, retain all of our childish zest and enthusiasm, it is fatal to our youthfulness to allow all these interests to fade entirely out of our lives, so that we will feel bored and annoyed by the things that so delight the youth about us.

All of the people whom I know who have carried youthfulness into their advanced years have been extremely responsive to many things in life which interested them in their early days. When we see a person advancing in years who feels bored with the things which seem to give young people so much pleasure, we may be quite sure that his brain cells, his nerve cells, are hardening, that his faculties are deadening, and his ability to appreciate things is becoming atrophied.

If the dance which exhilarates and captivates your daughter bores you to distraction, if her little parties and plans, which keep her awake nights with delicious anticipation, weary you, you may be pretty sure that you have been touched with the old age germ.

The great enemy of youthfulness is the drying-up process, and this is why you should not only keep as much as possible with the young but should enter into their joys, their plays, with zest and enthusiasm. We should romp and play with them, interest ourselves in the things that delight them, instead of pushing children away from us and restraining them all the time, regarding them as a nuisance and a bore. Children were given us to keep us youthful, to keep our sympathies fresh.—Orison Swett Marden in January Nautilus.

Skating Enjoyed

Many from this city are taking advantage of the excellent skating on Chautauqua lake in the Gladstone park, and the continued cold weather has made the sport ideal during the past few days. Sunday the lake was crowded with young and old alike.

The company that he was with had been sent to Camp Upton, New York, but orders were received there not to proceed further, and they were returned to California.

Chester Carothers has returned to Camp Lewis after spending his Christmas furlough in this city with his wife and other relatives.

Thomas Bailey, who has been stationed at the Presidio, San Francisco, is visiting his sister, Mrs. Bruno Fredericks, of Gladstone. He plans to return to his former home at Bend, since he has received his discharge.

THE DIVORCE ...MILL...

Florence Korbitz was granted a decree from Anton Korbitz.

Carmen Coe was given her freedom from Joel Coe, and the right to resume her maiden name of Carmen Pattison.

The demurrer in the divorce case of Margaret M. Shinner against Edward Shinner was overruled, and the defendant given until January 8 to file an answer.

Jessie L. Fansher was granted a decree of divorce Tuesday from Edward A. Fansher. She was awarded the custody of the minor child of the couple and allowed $25 a month for its support.

Jessie L. Fansher was given a decree from Edward A. Fansher, and was allowed the custody of the minor child of the couple. She was granted $25 a month for the support and education of the child.

Elizabeth M. Lewis entered suit for divorce Monday against Boyd C. Lewis, to whom she was married at South Bend, Wash., April 4, 1908. She alleges that he deserted her in December, 1917. She is asking the custody of the minor child of the couple, and $30 a month for its support. She says the defendant makes $125 a month.

After more than 40 years of married life, A. E. Sykes has filed a suit for divorce against Nettie Sykes. They were married at New Lisbon, Wis., April 15, 1877. He claims that in 1905 the defendant deserted him at Ames, Iowa, and has since refused to live with him. The couple have four children, the oldest of whom is 41, and the youngest 27 years of age.

Carl Vonhoff filed suit for divorce Friday against Ida Vonhoff, who he claims deserted him. They were married in Adhens, Wis., Nov. 22, 1898, and he claims that in March, 1910, she left him and has since refused to live with him. They have two minor children, and the plaintiff says that she took them with her when she left him.

A divorce suit filed Friday by Lilian Clark charges Joseph C. Clark, to whom she was married in Appleton, Wis., in 1910, with cruel and inhuman treatment. She claims that he often came home intoxicated, that he called her vile names, and made her life miserable. They have one minor child, and she says the defendant is not a fit custodian for it. She asks a decree and the custody of the child.

Permina M. Demarcki is seeking freedom from Henrico Demarcki in the circuit court here, alleging that he is so quarrelsome that she finds it impossible to live with him. The couple were married in Vancouver, Wash., May 11, 1917. The plaintiff is asking custody of their minor child, although she would allow the defendant to visit it at times. She asks $10 a month for the support of the child.

DON'T THROW AWAY YOUR OLD SHOES

Make Them Wear Like New--As Did This Canadian Officer

A Canadian army officer, William Pemberton, of the famous Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, told of the extraordinary wear given him by a pair of army boots twice repaired with Neolin Soles.

"Six months of trench warfare under destructive conditions put the first pair of Neolin Soles out of business," said Lieutenant Pemberton, "but ordinary soles would have gone to pieces in much less time."

Don't throw away shoes that can be repaired. Have them re-bottomed with Neolin Soles. Any cobbler or repairman will do the work for you. The price is no more than for soles that give less wear. Remember--Neolin Soles are created by science to be what soles should be. They are flexible and waterproof as well as durable. They come on new shoes of all styles. They are made by The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, Akron, Ohio, who also make Wingfoot Heels--guaranteed to outwear any other heels.
