Final Touches Put on Metal Tariff Bill by Democratic Leaders.

Washington, D. C.—The tariff revision fight opened in the House when consideration of the metal tariff bill was taken up as the first of the measures which the Democratic leaders will attempt to force through Congress.

All attempts of the Republicans to amend the measure failed. Consideration of the bill was marked by sharp division between Democrats and insurgent Republicans and the open declaration of many of the insurgents that they were against the bill.

The bill passed the House by a vote of 210 to 109. Twenty insurgent Republicans voted for the measure, while the Democratic delegation from Colorado, Representatives Martin, Rucker and Taylor, dissatisfied with the great reduction proposed in the lead tariff, voted against the Democratic majority.

The Republicans who supported the bill, all insurgents, were:

Representatives Davis and Lindbergh, Minnesota; Haugen, Hubbard and Woods, Iowa; Hegleson, North Dakota; Jackson, Murdock and Young, Kansas; Kent and Stephens, California; Kinkaid, Norris and Sloan, Nebraska; Lafferty, Oregon; LaFollette, and Warburton, Washington; Lenroot, Morse and Nelson, Wisconsin.

The bill as it will go to the Senate will carry an average reduction of tariff duties on all metal articles of about 35 per cent from the rates of the Payne-Aldrich law now in force.

May Investigate Money Trust.

Inquiry into the "money trust" has become one of the most important problems before the Democrats of the House, and with a difference of opinion existing among them as to the wisdom of such an investigation as is proposed in the resolution introduced by Representative Lindbergh, of Minnesota, Representative Henry, of Texas, chairman of the rules committee, took the positive stand that the inquiry was imperative.

Will Concentrate Army.

Secretary of War Stimson, acting upon an exhaustive report from the general staff, has decided that no less than 16, and probably 18, existing army posts should be abandoned at once, in order to put an end to the "extravagance and inefficiency resulting from improper distribution of the mobile army."

Among the posts condemned are Boise Barracks, Idaho and George Wright, Washington.

Government Railway for Alaska.

President Taft's next special message to Congress will deal with the conservation of natural resources. With the general subject of conservation goes the administration of affairs in Alaska. It has been decided to recommend substantially as follows:

The construction by the federal government of a central trunk line railroad from tidewater to Tanana and Yukon, in Alaska. The passage of a liberal but carefully safeguarded leasing law, development of mineral resources and especially of coal lands; the reservation of a sufficient amount of coal lands in Alaska to provide for the future needs of the navy and the mining of coal by the government for this purpose; more liberal appropriations for the construction of roads and trails in Alaska.

Long Session Predicted.

Congressman Fitzgerald, chairman of the committee on appropriations in the house, predicts a very long session of Congress, extending long after the national conventions have made their nominations for president. He thinks the disagreements between the house and senate will tend to extend the sessions, for there will be no disposition to yield, especially when political capital may be in the balance.

National Capital Brevities.

Secretary of the Navy Meyer will ask Congress for an appropriation of $1,000,000 to establish wireless stations on the Pacific coast.

Senator Bradley has introduced a bill allowing American vessels free use of the Panama canal, except where a vessel is owned by a railroad company.

That the United States will not interfere in Chinese politics unless forced to do so by an anti-American demonstration, was announced by the state department.

Senator Gore has introduced a joint resolution for a joint congressional investigation of the presidential campaign funds of 1904 and 1908, and, as soon as possible, of 1912.

During the hearing on the house bill which would impose an eight-hour labor restriction on all government contract work, Senator Borah denounced the steel trust, declaring it "paid millions in dividends, yet has in its 'hell holes' men who work 12 hours a day seven days a week and others who work 18 to 24 hours in one shift."

BULL RING ANTICS

Mexican "Sport" as Viewed Through American Spectacles.

TACTICS OF THE TOREROS.

They Were Better Runners Than Fighters and Displayed More Cowardice Than Bravery—Mirth That the Natives Couldn't Appreciate.

"Thank you, Aguirre, but I hardly think I want to see one of your bull-fights. I have heard enough about them to make me sick of the thought." I had seen every other kind of fight, from messenger boys up to bull moose and buffalo, and Aguirre felt that I would forever regret it if I left Mexico without at least once witnessing the national sport.

I reluctantly consented to accompany him, and after our dinner, instead of taking the usual siesta, we went to the ring. I had often read the stories of such fights, and after the series of three had been finished I wondered if any writer had ever taken the trouble to describe the ridiculous and funny stunts that crop out during the course of the fights.

The first bull that was released went through the ordinary course of sprouts, first goring a broken down race horse which had seen service on many of the tracks in the States and was used in the bull ring only because he was a thoroughbred. Finally the bull was put to death by a stab between the shoulders, which paralyzed his spine.

The second entrant was a little black fellow full of fire, which had been especially raised on the big ranch of Governor Traxos. Between the toril (pen) and the ring there was a short alley, just wide enough to allow the bulls to get through without rubbing the hair from their flanks. Leaving over the boards which formed the sides of the passageway was a Mexican negro, who, when the little bull was above out of the toril, jabbed a fishhook "barbo" into his left shoulder, which maddened the animal to such an extent that he hardly knew which way to turn, so eager was he to locate his enemy.

The crowd at this time was going mad and from all sides could be heard frantic cries of "Cobardo, podrido, putrefaccion" (coward, rotten, rotteness), and "El toro es muerto" (the bull is dead). On the contrary, he was very much alive and showed it a few moments later. After he was chased into the toril the torero, whose name was Albertis, appeared before the president's box, as is the custom when a failure is made, to explain himself and ask for another chance before he was condemned. The opportunity was given, and the result was only a repetition of the former attempt, except that the bull was prevented from catching him by helpers who were armed with long poles and prevented the beast from scaling the fence.

Springing ten or a dozen yards toward the center of the ring, the frenzied creature stopped short, spread his front feet out as far as he could and madly pawed the ground. In his shoulder the wicked barb still stuck, and to it were fastened a big yellow rosette and a half dozen red streamers trailing the ground.

Presently a volunteer novice torero (bullfighter on foot) jumped over the fence on the north side of the ring and advanced a few feet toward the defiant bull. One flaunt of the torero's red banderola (banner) and the bull became a demon. With head down he rushed at the novice, who meanwhile had lost his nerve, for he stood quaking with fear when he should have been advancing to meet the rushing animal. When the latter was only twenty yards away the volunteer dropped the banderola and espada (sword) and put for the fence as fast as he could go. The fence was about four feet high, and the torero cleared it in a straight-way dive.

The poor bull was not so fortunate, although he was game enough to attempt the fence in his mad effort to catch his tormentor. He landed on top of the boards and stuck there, with his hind legs in the air, until he was released by some attendants who ventured from the other side of the ring.

I took a heap of fun out of the antics of my little hero, the bull, and was having a good laugh all to myself while the mob was going wild with disgust at the cowardice of Albertis when Aguirre advised me to suppress my mirth or there would be trouble for both of us.

When order was restored the little black bunch of muscle, brawn and grit was brought into the inclosure for the third time, but it took the efforts of two toreros (bullfighters on horseback) and a professional foot fighter to beat him, and his defeat was then due only to the fact that he was exhausted. Aguirre told me that it was bad form in Mexico to laugh at anything in a bullfight but the death of the bull, but I remarked to him that in all America he would not find a gringo who would not instantly grasp the funny side of that particular bullfight and carry it home so that others might laugh too.—Denver Republican.

WOODROW WILSON GREAT DEMOCRAT

Judge Stringer of Illinois Recognizes Him as the Logical Leader of the Party.

IS FITTED FOR WHITE HOUSE

Statesman, Scholar and Proved Practical Executive, New Jersey Statesman Would Be Ideal Occupant of the Presidential Chair.

BY LAWRENCE B. STRINGER, Democratic Candidate For the U. S. Senate From Illinois Against Lorimer.

Before meeting Gov. Wilson, I was somewhat predisposed in his favor, from having read many of his productions and having admired the great comprehensive grasp of economic situations which pervades all of his political utterances and writings.

Still while predisposed in his favor, until I had personally met and conversed with him, I was not convinced of his availability as a candidate for President.

Since meeting Gov. Wilson, however, all doubt in that regard, in my own mind, has been removed. Gov. Wilson is presidential timber of the exact kind and quality required at the present time. To begin with he is an intellectual giant, with a broad comprehensive grasp of every public situation. Throughout the east, he is universally regarded as the brainiest American living today. Even in private conversation, his intellectuality scintillates in every sentence he utters. He has a logical and analytical mind. His language is simple, easily understood, yet definite, lucid and convincing. He has been a student of political economy since his boyhood, has written varied books upon the subject and is conceded to be the highest authority upon theories of government in the country today. While our presidents have generally been men of patriotic impulses, honest and conscientious, still few of them have been great intellectually. Thomas Jefferson was an exception to this rule. Woodrow Wilson, if elected president, by reason of his intellectuality, characteristics, training, fearlessness, patriotism faith in the people and extraordinary intellectuality would indeed be a second Thomas Jefferson.

Ideal Chief Executive of State.

As governor of New Jersey, he has given that state a practical business administration so conceded by all. He has shown himself to be peculiarly fitted for the executive offices along the most practical lines. In meeting him, you are impressed with this fact. The intellectuality is not in the least in evidence. It is plain, matter of fact, and his conversation is not pedantic or pedagogue, but direct, forceful and earnest.

Above all he is a man of the people. He was born with no silver spoon in his mouth. He is not a man of means or wealth. He is easily approachable. No dignity hedges him about. He resides in a very modest home at Princeton. On knocking at his door, no servant, liveried or otherwise met us at the portals. It was the governor himself who opened the door for us, welcomed us in, took our hats and wraps and laid them aside, ushered us into his library, made us feel at home and talked to us neighbors who had dropped in for a casual call. There are no trills nor lure-bells about him. He is essentially Jeffersonian. As governor of New Jersey, he has fought for the plain people and they love him. In doing so, he has antagonized the interests. He knows it, but doesn't care. He has faith in the people and takes them into his confidence.

Sense of Duty Supreme.

I also found him to be a man of positive convictions with the courage of the same. He is fearless in his expressions of opinions. If they do not agree with your opinion, he is sorry, but he does not trim his views to conform with yours. His sense of duty is supreme. He would not change his views, unless convinced that he was wrong, even though it made him president. He is not a trimmer. He is not a politician, but is a statesman in all that word implies. He abhors machine politics and machine methods. He does nothing behind closed doors. Everything with him is in the open and he has no political or public secrets. What he says to you, he is willing the world should know. He is the soul of integrity and honor and he stands today as the one great champion of progressive ideas of government in state and nation. If elected president, no machine leaders, bosses or fractions will control or influence him. His sense of duty alone will actuate him.

Altogether I was exceedingly well impressed with Gov. Wilson as a man, as a statesman, as an executive and as a possible, if not a probable, future president. He seems to combine in one personality, great intellectuality, simplicity, modesty, fearlessness in the discharge of duty, sterling character, honesty of motive, effectiveness, executive ability, energy, enthusiasm, rugged honesty, practicality and Jeffersonian democracy. And what more what more would anyone want?

DEALING IN STOCKS.

Know What You Are Buying Before Investing Your Money.

We hear of fortunes quickly made in Wall street, of miners who have accumulated enormous wealth by a lucky strike, of inventions that have made inventors rich. But how many of these instances are there? Just a few, while countless thousands and hundreds of thousands have lost everything in unsuccessful ventures.

The prosperous, successful man or woman is the one who buys with knowledge of what he or she is buying, whether it be a piece of beef, a dozen of eggs, a horse, a house or stocks and bonds.

Money has been made in Wall street and will continue to be made. Those who buy stocks when they sell low and sell them when they advance must make money. The operation is no different from buying a house or a farm at a bargain and selling it at a profit. But one should exercise just as much care in one transaction as in the other.

Have nothing to do with those who offer glittering opportunities to get rich quickly. This will save your money. It may sound very nice to say that one owns a thousand shares of a gold, silver or copper mine with a par value of $10,000 and that cost the holder only $50 or $100. But what use is such a certificate unless it has real value? Better put the $50 or $100 in one share of a dividend paying stock and be satisfied with moderate returns and a moderate profit on any advance the stock may enjoy.—Leslie's.

EAGLES IN COMBAT.

Fury of the Belligerent Birds in Their Duel in the Air.

An old time observer in Maryland says that the Eastern Shore eagles can fly faster, remain in their lofty flight longer and descend from it to the earth with more velocity than any other created thing with wings. He also says that the fierceness of the eagles and the tenacity and power of clutch they can put into their immense talons are beyond belief, and he cites as an instance of it a fight between two of the big birds that he once saw.

Just what incited the two eagles to the combat this spectator of the fight did not know, but they came together high in the air. A long time the two fierce birds fought with beak and talon and wing, rushing upon one another, delivering their blows and retreating for advantage in a new attack. Then at last they eluded and fought at close quarters.

In that position they came plunging to the earth, but neither made any effort to stay the fall, so desperately intent was each on the savage battle. They struck together in the freshly turned furrow of a plowed field, and the impact failed to separate them or to cause an instant's delay in the fight, and the coming on the scene of a man with a club, with which he at once took part in the battle, did not distract their attention from one another, and the man killed them both. Their talons were buried so deeply in each other's flesh that to separate the two belligerent eagles it was necessary to cut off their legs.—New York Sun.

Married Young to Beat Smallpox.

When I was a lad the number of people whose faces were pitted with smallpox was legion. "Blind from smallpox" was on the card worn by most of the unfortunate street beggars who had lost their sight.

The anxiety of parents to have their daughters married at an age which would now be considered almost scandalously immature was one by-product of the frequency and severity of smallpox. If a girl's face were marred her prospects of matrimony were, of course, impaired, and the ambition of mothers—so common was smallpox—was to see their daughters safely married before they caught the disease.—From Walter Gilbey's "Recollections of Seventy Years" in Nineteenth Century.

DOUBLY PROVEN

Oregon City Readers Can No Longer Doubt the Evidence

This Oregon City citizen testified long ago. Told of quick relief—of lasting benefit.

The facts are now confirmed. Such testimony is complete—the evidence conclusive.

It forms convincing proof of merit. Theodore Hueth, Parkplace, Oregon City, Ore., says: "I found Doan's Kidney Pills to be just as represented and I consider them worthy of endorsement. For a long time I suffered from lumbago across my back and there was a steady ache over my kidneys. The trouble was not severe enough to lay me up but it caused great distress, especially when I stooped or lifted. On a friend's advice, I was finally led to use Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from Huntley Bros' Drug Co., and they removed every symptom of my trouble." (Statement given January 27, 1905.)

A PERMANENT CURE.

In April, 1910, Mr. Hueth added to the above: "The statement I have previously given in favor of Doan's Kidney Pills still holds good. This remedy effected a permanent cure in my case."
