DELICACY BRINGS FAME

Mrs. Robert Warner Grants Son's Dying Wish and is Rewarded

Far echoes of pleasant events bring them again into life with accelerated joy; the thing has mellowed, and retrospection brings happiness, unalloyed. All of which is brought to mind by the coming now, a year after the awards at San Francisco, of the medals and certificates that witness in material form for excellence at that great Panama-Pacific Exposition, which cannot be forgotten even in these stirring times. The awards were made then; the medals are now reaching their recipients.

One of the most appreciative of these recipients is Mrs. Robert Warner of Oregon City, who has just received a beautiful medal recognizing the superior quality of her jellies that made such a hit at the great fair.

I can see them now, those clear, winey jellies of all the jewel colors, with never a bubble, never a flaw, one instinctively feels like saying, for they appear to be veritable jewels. They made a little mound in the Oregon building, catching every eye, invariably holding attention.

The marvelous thing about these jellies is their purity of appearance; as clear as crystal, and the natural Oregon fruit color; and when you are so lucky as to be permitted a nibble, you find appearances more than made good in delicacy of flavor and quality. There is no gumminess, no leatheriness—it is jelly, perfect, unapproachable.

More than women jell-makers paused by the exhibit and wondered, and questioned; commercial firms studied these flawless samples, and everyone asked, "How does she do it?" Is it in the Oregon fruit? The proportions of sugar? The boiling? How is the result obtained? Nobody ever got a satisfactory answer; but I did, last week; it is love.

Mrs. Warner, wife of the superintendent of the Crown-Willamette Paper company of Oregon City, for 30 years at this station, works in fruits as an artist in paints, as an art worker in silks. It is her art to convey the juices of luscious fruits into another form for the delectation of man. It isn't a commercial business with her, it is a consecration. Every year she has studied more deeply into how to handle these juices so as to get more beautiful and palatable results.

She had all the lovely colors but green, and so she raised a garden of mint and squeezed out the juice and worked with this product till she obtained a perfect emerald! oh, but this mint jelly is delicious—on lamb. She loves to send a little group of her perfect jellies to brides. This perfection in a household affair is beautifully suggestive to one just beginning the long domestic way. She loves to send them to sick people, to troubled people; it is her gift.

Another angle on the thing came out in my talk with this dear homemother on her "lovely jells." An only and much gifted son on the threshold of a splendid life passed out; before his going, he knew he would leave a mother bereaved beyond power to comfort. In his agony of suffering he thought of her coming loneliness. "Mother, make your jell," he said. "Make it better—work at it—take it to the fair."

When he had gone and the agonized days stretched out endlessly, and all attempts to find relief from the loneliness were futile, she thought one day of his words. She would do it; she would try to take an interest—she would make her "lovely jell." The boy's splendid wisdom was proved; she found surcease from pain in catching and holding the sunlight and life of fruit, in putting, some way, into this medium the sunlight and life and beauty of the manly boy who had gone. The thought comforted; the work of her hands distracted; she found rest.

And further following his expressed wish, she carried the jelly to the great fair; and today, hanging on the wall in a chosen spot in that Oregon City home, is the beautiful medal that tells the world that the world saw and appreciated and recognized the superior quality of her art; for art it is.

Love is the ingredient.—By Anne Shannon Monroe in The Oregonian.

Too Many Operations

The Right Medicine in Many Cases Does Better than the Surgeon's Knife. Tribute to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Doctor Said Operation or Death—But Medicine Cured.

Des Moines, Iowa.—"My husband says I would have been in my grave today had it not been for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I suffered from a serious female trouble and the doctors said I could not live one year without an operation. My husband objected to the operation and had me try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I soon commenced to get better and am now well and able to do my own housework. I can recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any woman as a wonderful health restorer."—Mrs. Blanche Jefferson, 703 Lyon St., Des Moines, Iowa.

Another Operation Avoided.

Richmond, Ind.—"For two years I was so sick and weak from female troubles that when going up stairs I had to go very slowly with my hands on the steps, then sit down at the top to rest. The doctor said he thought I should have an operation, and my friends thought I would not live to move into our new house. My daughter asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as she had taken it with good results. I did so, my weakness disappeared, I gained in strength, moved into our new home, do all kinds of garden work, and raised hundreds of chickens and ducks. I cannot say enough in praise of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. M. O. Johnston, Route D, Box 190, Richmond, Ind.

Of course there are many serious cases that only a surgical operation will relieve. We freely acknowledge this, but the above letters, and many others like them, amply prove that many operations are recommended when medicine in many cases is all that is needed.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.
