

PARTISANS PLEDGED SUPPORT TO WILSON

WOULD CARRY FORWARD GOVERNMENT PLANS WITH FULL SUCCESS

Prominent republican and progressive party leaders at New York Sunday signed a statement pledging their support to the war plans of the administration and asking prompt adoption of necessary legislation.

"To carry forward the plans of our government with full success and thereby achieve the ends just named," the statement says, "we believe that the following measures are immediately necessary:

"1—Universal military service to insure equality of sacrifice.

"2—Universal industrial service of both men and property in support of the nation.

"3—Official guarantee the government will buy at stated prices all agricultural products offered, to encourage the largest possible production.

"4—Government control of the prices of the necessities of life, including rent, food and fuel, to stop undue increase of the cost of living.

"5—Federal and state guarantees to the wage earners of America that their rights shall not be lost, so that the sacrifices that are required of them in common with all other citizens during the war shall not continue after peace is restored.

"6—Government co-operation to maintain and develop the efficiency of law abiding enterprises, thus preserving the foundations of our commercial prosperity. The tremendous struggle for the markets of the world which will follow the war must not find us unprepared.

"7—A graduated income tax by which an increasing part of the larger incomes shall be conscripted for public purposes, so that wealth may bear its fair share in the general sacrifice.

"8—A limit on profits in American and allied government orders and a super-tax on excess profits due to war conditions. To lend our allies $3,000,000,000 and then exact the return of much of it in extortionate profits would be indefensible.

"9—Conservation of grain so far as possible for food purposes.

"10—The payment of as much of the cost of the war as can be met out of current revenues.

"11—National and state legislation granting women equal political rights with men, thus completing the establishing of democracy.

"12—The retention and control of all natural resources now held by the government so that the foundations of national efficiency and industrial strength may not be impaired.

"13—The workers of our country will make heavy sacrifices during the war. With peace will come industrial readjustment. A government commission should be organized now to prepare for the distribution of unemployed labor after the war and for government use of surplus labor. With far-sighted purpose, we should plan to carry forward into the coming peace the increased industrial power resulting from a reorganization of labor and capital made necessary by the war.

"14—From common devotion to service to perpetuate and advance democracy there should be assurance of common benefit so that out of the sacrifices of war America may achieve broader democracy in government, more equitable distribution of wealth and greater national efficiency in raising the level of the general welfare."

RESOLUTIONS SENT

Loyalty League Asks Congress to Consider Raising Soldier's Pay

The important part of a set of resolutions prepared by the Loyalty league and forwarded to the Oregon delegation at Washington and to Governor Withycombe points out that enlisted men in the service of the nation are sacrificing many advantages in civil life in the name of patriotism, that they may serve the flag in this time of stress, and that they are paid a much smaller wage than any kind of service is worth to any man, and concludes with the following:

"Resolved, That the Loyalty league of Clackamas county does beseech the Oregon congressional and senatorial delegations to do all within their power to foster and pass legislation doubling the pay of the enlisted men in all arms of the service."

THREATENED HER LIFE

Kanacos Wouldn't Let Wife Associate With Any But Greeks

Because she spoke to a fellow American, the life of Lesie E. Kanacos was threatened by her husband, Louis A. Kanacos, a Greek, according to the divorce complaint filed by Mrs. Kanacos here yesterday. She charges that her husband refused to permit her to associate with any but Greeks and she accuses him of cruelty and non-support. The couple was married at Vancouver, Wash., on September 23, 1912, and has one child aged four years. Mrs. Kanacos asks custody of the youngster, $10 a month alimony and the restoration of her former name, Lesie Hammerley.

GOVERNMENT WINS SUIT FOR LANDS

SUPREME COURT AFFIRMS FEDERAL LAND GRANT ACT

LANDS WILL BE OPEN SOON

Chamberlain-Ferris Bill Upheld As Constitutional. 2,300,000 Acres Involved

In deciding the Oregon-California land case, the supreme court affirmed the Oregon federal court's decree enjoining the Southern Pacific railroad from disposing of timber and minerals on its lands received by congressional grant.

By the same decision the government won in its suit against the Southern Pacific railroad to regain nearly 2,300,000 acres of Oregon and Washington land, worth $30,000,000.

The Chamberlain-Ferris law of 1916, forfeiting and divesting the railroad's title to the lands granted by congress in 1866 and provisions for federal sale of the lands, timber and minerals, was upheld as constitutional.

Through Justice McKenna the court held that the Oregon federal court's decree enjoining sale by the railroad of timber and minerals on the land was entirely in accordance with the supreme court's previous orders. The decision was unanimous and entirely in favor of the government except as to costs of the litigation—a considerable sum—the court ordering that the government should not receive its costs.

This decision of the supreme court sustaining the government's claims entails: Forfeiting the railroad's title to land, timber and minerals, with future payment to the railroad of $2.55 an acre for the land only. Denial to the railroad of any proceeds from timber and minerals. Disposition of timber, mineral, power and agricultural rights under direction of the interior and agricultural departments. Payments to Oregon and Washington of about $1,300,000 in taxes due.

A decision in favor of the railroad involved receipt of the proceeds by the railroad instead of the government from the lands, timber and minerals, with the government receiving but $2.50 an acre, and also annulment of the Chamberlain-Ferris law of 1916 which forfeited the railroad's title and provided for the properties' disposition by the government.

Forfeiture of the railroad's title was sought because it charged more than $2.50 an acre for the land granted in 1866 by congress to induce construction by the old Oregon-California railroad of railroad extensions into the then new northwest territory. The old grant fixed this maximum figure at which the grantees should sell to actual settlers. The government alleged gross and continuous violation of the $2.50 price restriction for 40 years. It charged that the railroads had sold land for prices greatly in excess of that sum.

Within six months from this date the unsold agricultural lands in the unsold railroad grants ought to be open for entry by actual settlers, in the opinion of Clarence L. Reames, United States district attorney, after reading the press dispatch from Washington. However, according to William D. Fenton, of counsel for the Southern Pacific company, in a published interview several weeks ago, there will be several bridges to cross before the railroad grant lands can be disposed of by the government. At that time he made it clear that the Southern Pacific had several new points to raise in the supreme court before the long-drawn-out litigation between the government and the railroad company would be finally closed.

"As soon as notice is received from the secretary of the interior that the lands, except the timbered tracts, are ready for entry, applications will be received for their settlement and the purchase of timber," says Mr. Reames. "The mineral lands will be open to entry also."

"No person has authority to accept any flings or fees until the department of the interior acts. Any one who pays another money to acquire a preference right will be throwing his money away on a bunko game. The public should be warned against such schemes."

INQUIRERS REPORT

Price and Hogg Blame Brakeman for Derail of Railroad Car

For the derailment of a Southern Pacific passenger coach on the track near the station here on April 17, a board of inquiry appointed by the railroad company has blamed the brakeman, H. T. Mairan. Mairan, the board reports, threw a switch to which a derail was attached before the last car had passed over the track, cutting deeply into the road bed. It took a train crew several hours to right the coach. The local men on the board of inquiry which sat at Portland were Fred Hogg and A. A. Price.

CLUB TO CELEBRATE USUAL BOOSTER DAY

COMMERCIAL CLUB GETS BACK OF ANNUAL EVENT AGAIN. PLANS TO CONTINUE

The annual Booster day celebration in Oregon City will be held late in May, it was decided at a meeting of the Commercial club publicity committee and donors to the fund who met at the club rooms Monday night. A score or more of the business men who are contributing to the publicity fund for the year voted to continue the work of the committee as it has been during the present year with an assistant secretary in active charge of affairs, and engaged in a general discussion of plans that had already been outlined.

The vote for the annual Booster day event came after some discussion by business men who considered all phases of the question, including any effect the war might have upon the success of the celebration. The vote was decidedly in favor of the event and the publicity committee will start at once upon detailed plans for the affair. The action is said to mean the revival of the Fallarians, Oregon City's marching club, which it was thought might suffer a natural death from inactivity. A meeting of the Fallarians will be called within a few days.

WILL COLLECT ARMS

Sheriff W. J. Wilson has started upon an earnest search for firearms among alien residents of Clackamas county in carrying out the instructions of the federal government. Sheriff Wilson issued a public statement on two occasions yesterday questioning that firearms in the possession of aliens be surrendered, but none have been delivered to him. In the meantime he has collected a long list of names of such persons and will see to it that some of the arms are turned into his keeping until the war is ended.

LIVE WIRES ENTERTAIN

Will Have Fine Program of Music and Speeches for Wednesday

The Live Wires of the Commercial club are to entertain the road supervisors and county court at a luncheon and entertainment next Wednesday noon and have arranged an interesting program for the occasion. The supervisors and the court will be in joint session on that day. There is to be no road debate and the Live Wires will not undertake to tell the supervisors and court what they should do with their roads. But a genuine effort will be made toward their entertainment.

"Pull Oregon Out of the Mud," is the line appearing at the top of the program. It is expressive of the theme which will be taken up in addresses by County Judge H. S. Anderson and Judge Grant B. Dimick. Dr. W. T. Milliken will pronounce the invocation and an address of welcome will be made by Livy Stipp. Charles Graham will offer a Scotch monologue skit and a specially selected quartet will sing. Music will be furnished by an orchestra and the program will end with a patriotic address by James H. Cary.

Street Rights Deeded As a formality in connection with the closing of Fourth street, Oregon City, to the uses of the Hawley Pulp & Paper company, the owners of adjoining property Friday filed a deed surrendering title. The adjoining property is owned by the Southern Pacific, James Tracy and the mill company itself.

EGGS ARE HELD

Emerson Says Big Dealers Have "Mighty Close Understanding"

According to Herbert A. Emerson, who has been to the Pacific coast investigating food conditions for John J. Dillon, commissioner of the state of New York, there are between 30,000,000 and 36,000,000 eggs in Chicago, held by speculators to keep up high prices.

Mr. Emerson said that the Pacific coast states this year, instead of importing eggs as they have done generally, will have a surplus of 75,000 to 100,000 cases to sell.

Mr. Emerson said he had no evidence of an "egg trust," but said he is sure there is a "mighty close understanding" between the big dealers and was confident an investigation would cause a break in prices.

"The butter situation is a parallel," he said. "The Pacific coast this year will be able to ship east a surplus of 150 cars of butter, 24,000 pounds to the car. Four years ago the coast imported 200 cars."

Aged German Wants Papers Christian F. Schlickeiser, aged 77, Monday filed application for final certificate of citizenship. Mr. Schlickeiser is a native of Germany and has been in the United States since May, 1866. In the following year he declared his citizenship intention in Minnesota. He is a farmer living near Sherwood.

LIVE WIRES OPEN EYES AT OSWEGO

FINE ENTERTAINMENT PROVIDED FOR LOCAL CLUB BY BIG CEMENT COMPANY

FIND IMPORTANT INDUSTRY

Thirty Members Feast. Oregon Made Food is Feature. Inspect Great Factory

Oswego women and the Oswego-Portland Cement company "did themselves proud" last Tuesday with the entertainment of a large delegation of Live Wires which enjoyed the hospitality at a special meeting at Oswego. A splendid luncheon at which made in Oregon food predominated was a feature of the meeting. The Live Wires were guests of the cement company and the women presided at the tables.

More than 30 members of the Live Wire organization mixed with cement company officials and Oswego men about the big tables in the dining room of the Riverside Inn at the plant. From Oregon made loganberry juice to tasty pies and cakes the meal was a complete success and the cigars that were passed were probably the only part of the meal not made within a few miles of the big cement plant.

A. King Wilson, mayor of Oswego, was in charge of the meeting. He called upon F. J. Tooe, Oregon City school superintendent, for a brief outline of the plan for Clackamas county day in connection with the convention of the National Education association, which meets in Portland in July. B. T. McMain, of the committee labelled, "12 disciples of road efficiency," spoke briefly upon good road matters. Mr. McMain was able to assure the cement people that their product would be recognized in building good roads if the bond bill passes and if they bring their prices down to meet the costs of other paving materials. He has been in close touch with the state highway commission and repeated to the meeting statements made to him by Simon Benson, one of the members of the new state highway commission.

Mr. Wilson spoke briefly about the cement plant and then led the visitors upon a trip of inspection about the big cement factory. To say that the eyes of 30 Oregon City business men were opened wide by the bigness of the industry at Oswego is putting it mildly. From bottom to top and from end to end of the cement plant the Live Wires were shown the details of the manufacture of the product. They watched the huge rocks tumble into the first grinder and watched them as they were crushed into still smaller sizes at several stages upon their journey to the sacks in which the cement is sold. The rock travels a good half mile from the bunkers to the sacks and en route is transformed from unwieldy big boulders to the finest powder.

At present the plant is producing about 1000 sacks of cement each day and cars are waiting to carry it to market. The investment at Oswego is an extensive one and is on a far larger scale than Oregon City business men imagined. Its importance as a Clackamas county industry is not unduly one of the duties before the Live Wires to cooperate in the development of the institution wherever possible.

The sacking room, incidentally, attracted considerable attention from the visitors at the cement plant on Tuesday. There sacks are tied before they are filled with the fine powder that has within the last few years been made into the tallest buildings in the world. Some of the Wires discovered readily how tied sacks could be filled and it remains for others in the county who are interested in the upbuilding of the county's important industries to see it for themselves.

Given a favorable supply of rock and material the output of the Oswego plant is practically unlimited, and with a cooperative spirit from all sides there is no reason why it could not be built up to be one of the largest and most successful employers of labor in the state.

MAKES GRAVE THREAT

Wife Doesn't Want Alleged Cruel Husband Longer

"If you report me to the officers I'll blow your brains all over the bed," this is the threat said to have been made by Albert Hancock to his wife, Maude Ruby Hancock, as she lay on a sick bed, while he brandished a pistol over her.

Mrs. Hancock late Saturday filed suit for divorce, charging cruelty and setting forth his threat as evidence. The couple was married at Vancouver, Wash., in October, 1915. There are no children nor property rights. Mrs. Hancock asks $150 for costs of the action and $25 a month alimony.

TWO HURT BY THUGS WHO USE GAS PIPE

CHINESE GARDENER AND AGED MILL EMPLOYE ATTACKED BY UNKNOWN GANG

Wong Ching, Chinese gardener, was attacked Saturday night by an unknown man and sustained painful cuts and bruises about the head and face from a length of gas pipe in the hands of his assailant. The attack occurred near the Adkins lumber yard at Greenpoint, while Wong Ching was on his way home.

Frank Cross witnessed the fray but was too late to aid the Chinaman. Wong escaped from his assailant after being struck several times. Deputy Sheriff Frost and the night patrolmen investigated and arrested James Henry, a youth, and held him for investigation.

A similar attack occurred on Monday at midnight when Peter Erickson, aged mill employee, was attacked and severely injured. He was struck about the head with a length of piping as he entered the tunnel under the Southern Pacific tracks on Fourth street. Erickson was returning home from his work at the Hawley mills when unknown assailants pounced upon him. Other mill employees who finished work at midnight entered the tunnel and frightened two men away before they had time to rob Erickson.

The old man was painfully injured and bled profusely, but was able to remain on his feet and walked almost a mile to his home before he collapsed. Night policemen Cook and Long searched for several hours for suspicious characters and with the aid of a squad of national guardsmen rounded up and jailed Larry Brizette, Frank Lewis and Lawrence Lewis as suspects. The three were strangers in the city. The night police believe Erickson's assailants are of the same crowd which attacked Wong Ching.

COLLEGE TRAIN TO BE HERE TWO DAYS

WILL ALSO VISIT CANBY FOR DEMONSTRATION IN FOOD CAMPAIGN

The first gun in the food campaign for western Oregon was fired when the agricultural preparedness demonstration train left Corvallis for Ashland Tuesday on the first stretch of a two weeks' trip which will take in the principal valley towns.

Lectures, demonstrations and exhibits treating of the management of back-yard garden plots and poultry plants will feature the trip. The demonstration train will transmit an appeal to the citizens of 24 valley towns to help national welfare by utilizing every available means of food production.

In addition to the information on food production, the college experts will show how to preserve fruit and vegetables by simple and inexpensive methods and also how best to incorporate them into the family menu.

The train is being handled cooperatively by the Southern Pacific railroad and the college extension service. Two passenger coaches will be used for lectures and another car for the exhibits. College extension specialists in poultry, gardening, canning and cooking will have direct charge of the work.

The train will be at Canby on May 5, and, of course, will be open to all who visit it as it stands in the depot yard. On May 6 it will come to Oregon City, remaining here over Sunday, and will be open Monday. On Tuesday it will be at Dallas after spending the better part of two full days at Oregon City.

APPLIES TO FARMERS

Employers' Liability Act Given Air in Supreme Court

Holding that the employers' liability act applies to farmers, the supreme court Tuesday, in an opinion written by Justice Burnett, reversed Circuit Judge P. R. Kelly of Linn county, in the case of William Poulos, appellant, vs. R. M. Grove.

Grove employed Poulos as a farm hand, and while employed as such the latter fell through a hole in the barn loft and was severely injured. Poulos' suit for damages was tried before Circuit Judge Kelly, and the court instructed the jury that if Poulos, through his negligence had contributed to the injury, he could not recover. This Justice Burnett held to be in error, declaring it would deprive Poulos of the benefit of the employers' liability act.

May Change Name

The question of changing the name of Mount Rainier will be considered at a hearing which has been granted by the United States geographic board, in compliance with a request from the Washington state legislature. The hearing will be held at the forest service headquarters, Atlantic building, Washington, D. C., May 2, 1917, at 10 a. m.

MONGOLIA SINKS A GERMAN U-BOAT

TWO BRITISH DESTROYERS DO BIG DAMAGE TO GERMANY'S FLEET IN CHANNEL

MONCHY COVERED WITH DEAD

Germany Getting it Heavily. Balfour is Here From England For Conference

How the first shell fired by an American gun in the present war instantly sank a German submarine is a story that future books of history may well recall.

It happened at 5:24 a. m., April 19—the one hundred and forty-second anniversary of the battle of Lexington. It has become another "shot heard 'round the world."

The American steamship Mongolia was approaching the southeastern coast of England. It was a hazy morning. Captain Rice, who had not taken off his clothes for five days, had just stepped out of the chartroom with naval gunnery Lieutenant (name deleted).

This is the way Captain Rice tells what followed:

"We suddenly heard an exclamation from the chief officer. 'There's a submarine off the port bow.' Immediately we rushed for the bridge, where we had practically spent most of the voyage, and simultaneously we saw a submarine periscope on the port side, only 200 yards away.

"Only about three feet of the periscope showed, but I realized instantaneously she had only to fire once to blow us sky-high with our 600 feet of target exposed. Automatically I swung the helm right around and bore down upon her starboardwise. This seemed our only chance of not being hit amidships. I thought the torpedo might pass alongside.

"She realized our intention instantly. She dived and also swung around, whether to avoid our attack or to maneuver into a better position for torpedoing I can't say. At any rate, we followed her round, watching the swirling wave caused by her moving as the periscope disappeared.

"Then she came up, expecting to be able to attack us on the port side. But we were going full speed ahead and in the two minutes before she emerged we had put her a thousand yards back of us. The stern gun was trained full on her and almost the instant she re-appeared the lieutenant gave the range order and then—'Fire.'

Two British destroyers on patrol duty in the English channel off Dover on the night of April 20 came upon a flotilla of six German destroyers and then ensued an encounter which will live long in the history of naval engagements.

German destroyers were torpedoed and rammed; every gun aboard the combatants was working, sweeping the decks and tearing gaps in the sides of the opposing craft. There was the locking together of a British and German destroyer, and the men fought furiously in a hand-to-hand battle.

German seamen of a rammed destroyer climbed aboard one of the British boats and a midshipman fought them back with an automatic pistol. They were killed or driven again into the sea by British jacksies, who came to the midshipman's aid.

The British destroyers were the Swift and the Broke, and, although they had received many wounds, they returned to port.

In pushing the British offensive yesterday General Sir Douglas Haig directed an attack along the three-mile front between the Cojeul and Scarpe rivers, where further gains have been scored.

South of the Arras battle front, General Haig is eating bit by bit into the German lines between Cambrai and St. Quentin. More than 3000 prisoners have been taken.

With the French armies along the Aisne front and in the Champagne the battle is confined mainly to the artillery, though the French continue to make progress in local fighting.

The town of Monchy le Preux, which lies about five miles east of Arras, will stand out in history as one of the bloodiest spots of the world war.

The ground around Monchy, as far as the eye can reach, is covered with the dead, the Germans at times having employed their old tactics of attacking in mass formation. Letters taken in the last two days from German prisoners, written in front of Monchy, say they regard the situation as worse than it was on the Somme, while the casualties are mounting up as at Verdun. In one of the letters the opinion is expressed that what has made the fighting difficult has been the fact that the opposing forces have not occupied fixed lines but are scattered in half-built trenches on this part of the front.

TEACHERS ASKED TO COME TO CLACKAMAS

CONVENTION MAY DESIGNATE DAY FOR VISIT TO COUNTY. COMMITTEE WORKS

The Clackamas County Teachers' association is evolving many plans for the entertainment of members of the National Education association which is to convene in Portland in July and every effort will be made to have the association set aside a Clackamas county day on the convention program. The local organization will lay before the national association the various geographical, economic and sociological features of Clackamas county in its effort.

It is hoped by a committee in charge of the plans to arrange trips to all parts of the county during the day set aside and if the plans work out, teachers from all parts of the nation, according to F. J. Tooe, city school superintendent, will get a fuller understanding of the glories of Oregon than has resulted from any other convention. A meeting of the committee appointed will be held within a few days. The committee is composed of C. E. Spence, master of the state grange; R. W. Rose, Molalla; Harvey Starkweather, Milwaukie; A. King Wilson, Oswego; F. M. Roth, Canby; O. D. Eby, Oregon City; Robert Goetz, Milwaukie, and Walter Givens, Estacada.

Oregon City is one of perhaps three cities in the state which has enrolled every one of its teachers in the Education association and is no doubt the largest of such cities. The teachers are excused from their reading circle work for the year when they enroll in the association.

THREE CHURCHES ROBBED

Rev. Williams Helps Father Hillebrand Discover Theft

Three churches within a distance of one block were entered by burglars on Friday evening and the unknown vandals escaped without attracting attention. The matter was reported to Sheriff Wilson late Saturday. In the Baptist church every locker in the boys' department was broken open, but only a few small coins were taken.

In St. Paul's Episcopal church the marauders broke into the sacristy, where valuable altar fittings were kept. Nothing was taken from St. Paul's church. At St. John's Roman Catholic church, Father Hillebrand discovered the loss of money from a collection box after Rev. T. J. Williams, of St. Paul's, had told him of the burglary. The money taken from St. John's had been deposited in payment for papers and pamphlets. Nothing was molested in what was apparently a search for money.

FISHERMEN FIGHT

Will Ask Full Cooperation of Columbia River Net Men

An effort will be made by the Clackamas County Fishermen's union to keep Columbia river fishermen from the river here during the salmon run unless they contribute energy and money toward the fight that is being made to keep the Willamette open to fishing nets. This action was decided upon at a meeting of the union at the city hall last night.

A committee to meet Columbia river fishermen as they arrive here to cast their nets and to secure their cooperation in the fight for the defeat of the Gill bill, which closes the Willamette to net fishing from the falls to near Oswego, comprises: W. W. Bowers, William Finucan, A. Smith, V. C. Jubb, George Bowers, H. Douthett, George Story, Charles Ely, J. Nizick, Harold Brown, Gerald Warner, Matthew Story, J. Dickens, F. Albee and A. Stanich. It was announced last night that 10,000 signatures had been signed to the referendum petitions that are in circulation against the Gill bill.

New Agent Appointed

The Southern Pacific company has placed W. E. Satchwell in the local station to take the place of H. D. Olson, who was promoted some time ago to be traveling freight agent. Mr. Satchwell comes to Oregon City from Shedd, Ore.

Marriage License

A marriage license was issued here Monday by County Clerk Iva Harrington to Harriet A. Mosier and Dayton E. Van Vactor of 250 12th street, Portland.

elgn secretary, stated Wednesday that the allied governments would not think of asking this country to depart from its traditional policy or enter into any formal alliance which might prove embarrassing.

"Our confidence in the alliance and the assurances of this government," Mr. Balfour said, "is not based on such shallow considerations as arise from treaties. No treaty could increase our unbounded confidence that the United States, having come into the war, will see it through to the great end we all hope for."

Mr. Balfour, after his first two days in the American capital, consented to an interview to express his gratitude for the warmth of his reception.
